We see from the last Clarksville Chronicle that it is soon to be enlarged and otherwise improved. The Chronicle is one of the least papers in the State. Its views of business and politics are siways sound and practical, and it gives us sincere pleasure to know that it is receiving so much substantial encouragement from the intelligion of Montgomery county. Newspapers are essentially the representatives of the people among whom they are published; strangers judge of communities by their home papers, and it is necessary for them to receive a liberal patronage if they present a respectable appearance. We consides. Complaints have been so numerous from abroad and from our home markets, in regard to this objectionable practice, that inspectors will be forced, for their own protection, to put a portion of the short tobacco in the sample, as is done in all other markets.

THE CLARESVILLE CHRONICLE.—This old an excellent paper has struck the tide that leads to fortune. It is going to commence the new year with a new dress, to be enlarged and to be printed on a power press. It is to retain its political Editor R. W. Thomas, one of the most foreible and elegant journalists in the State. The literary, local and financial department of the Chronicle will be under the able management of Prof. John Baildwin, formerly Principal of the Nashville Howard High School. Prof. Baidwin is a gentleman of finished education, splendid literary attainments and is a good speaker. We welcome him to the land of Bohemia, and wish the Chronicle the biggest sort of success.—Dycreburg Gazette.
